Friend leaps to clubber's defence during GBH trial

By William Mata
william.mata@hertsessexnews.co.uk

A MAN allegedly beaten up after twerking inside a Harlow nightclub is "a lovely guy," according to a friend.

Six men are standing trial for GBH after Lewis Criddle sustained facial injuries during an attack in Post Office Walk, Harlow, at around 3.30am on September 4, 2015.

Victim

On the fifth day of the trial, Chelmsford Crown Court heard on Monday morning that the victim had met several friends and he was looking forward to a night out.

Reading a statement from Mr Criddle's friend Victoria Allen, Anwar Nashashibi, prosecuting, said: "My best friend Lewis Criddle was assaulted. I have known him for two years.

"I would describe him as a lovely guy with lots of friends and I do not know anybody that does not like him.

"That is why I am so surprised it happened."

The half-dozen defendants who have pleaded not guilty are: Luke

Martin, 19, of Joyners Field, Harlow; Jordan Hinton, 20, of The Briars, Harlow; Danny Lockett, 21, of Little Brays, Harlow; Craig Quennell, 22, of Long Banks, Harlow; Luke Quennell, 19, of Long Banks, Harlow; and Sean Stuart, 32, of Tamar Way, London.

Stuart previously admitted punching Mr Criddle in a separate indictment.

All six men and Mr Criddle were inside Twenty One Bar when Martin allegedly became angry after the victim "twerked" against him.

CCTV footage showed the group gathering outside and following Mr Criddle down Post Office Walk, but the attack happened off camera.

Unconscious

In a hearing last week witnesses were unable to state which defendant struck Mr Criddle but they agreed he was knocked unconscious and beaten when he was on the ground.

Miss Allen's statement continued: "Lewis had two drinks and he did not appear drunk at all."

"He had been in a good mood as he had got a new job (as a barber)."

She added that Mr Criddle often went to Twenty One Bar and had never encountered trouble before.

Footage showing Mr Criddle's injuries was shared on Snapchat.

Reading the account of PC Glenn Braden, Mr Nashashibi said: "(In hospital later the same day) he had large purple bruising and his left eye was not opening."

"There was a two centimetre cut to his nose. He stated he did not remember."

The trial continues.

'Jury has difficult task' in historic sex offences trial

78-year-old accused of assaulting girls 40 to 50 years ago, says judge

By Richard Duggan
star@hertsessexnews.co.uk

A JUDGE has warned a jury of the difficult task they face in trying a man accused of historic sex offences against children.

Bryan Lyall, 78, is charged with seven counts of indecent assault against three victims that are said to have taken place between 1964 and 1974.

Five of the assaults are alleged to have been committed on girls under the age of 13, while the remaining two are claimed to have been against a girl under the age of 16.

Lyall denies the charges.

Dock

Besppectated Lyall, of Potters Field, Harlow, wore a leather jacket and maroon shirt as he sat in the dock to hear Judge David Turner QC sum up the evidence and give directions to the jury of six men and six women.

Summing up the case to the jury, Judge Turner said: "On the one hand, the prosecution invite you to believe the evidence of three middle-aged women describing what the defendant did to them 40 to 50 years ago.

"The defence invite you to believe, considering the evidence, it's a pack of lies, a conspiracy.

"It's a stark and difficult decision you face. You must decide the case on the evidence."

But Judge Turner went on to warn the jury about the danger of relying on assumptions and thoughts they may have formed in regard to historic sex offences and their alleged victims.

Touching

"You may have formed a view in advance of how you would expect children or young persons to behave when confronted with sexual touching," he said at Chelmsford Crown Court yesterday (Wednesday)

"You may have heard views about people who sit on these offences for years or even decades before making some sort of complaint to the authorities.

"The experience of this court is that assumptions of that sort are quite dangerous and are unlikely to assist."

Judge Turner also warned the jury not to believe the evidence of witnesses based on whether they liked them or not.

The trial continues.

Nursery to shut doors after 10 years because of funding cuts

Owner – Grant reduction is to blame

By William Mata

william.mata@hertsessexnews.co.uk

THE manager of Fidgety Fingers said the Harlow nursery will close this month after ten years.

Jackie Neagle, who owns and manages the Ofsted outstanding rated centre in Willow Place, Hastingwood, has blamed a lack of Government support for the decision.

From September nurseries will be expected to provide 30 hours of free childcare to children if both of their parents work.

Centres

This is an increase from the current 15 hours, but the National Day Nurseries Association has said that the Government has only offered centres an extra 40p per hour.

Ms Neagle said: "We have made a decision to close on July 26. The Government funding for 15 hours a week does not cover our costs.

"It has been reduced and reduced. It has made it unsustainable."

Fidgety Fingers provides teaching, care and fun for youngsters aged two to five and is currently over-subscribed.

Ms Neagle says a lot of parents and children will be left disappointed by the decision, but the nursery is facing the axe because decisions made by central Government.

"Thirty hours is what is expected from September," she continued. "The fact that we are a small nursery is not in our favour. We will be seeing nurseries close across the country.

"We are chock-a-block with children, we are full, but they are taking free places and we are losing £2 an hour. My staff are worth more than I can afford to pay them."

The manager said she cannot ask for parents to pay a top-up fee and can only ask for a voluntary payments.

Let Down

She added that she feels "let down," by the Conservative Government.

The Department of Education says it will spend a record £6 billion on childcare by 2020, but Fidgety Fingers is feeling the pinch as all policy changes combine.

Ms Neagle said: "Over the last two years I have had to pay staff a pension and National Insurance contribution (on top of wages)."

Cannabis factory found after police alerted by smell coming from room

A SUSPICIOUS smell led police to a huge cannabis factory in Harlow.

A total of 259 plants were found in a commercial unit near Edinburgh Way on Thursday, July 6.

The plants were discovered after the site's owner gained access to the room. The room had been sub-leased by the owner. But the contract had ended – prompting the owner to drill through the lock on the door. A forensic unit attended the scene but no one was arrested.

PC Tim Knights, one of the officers at the scene, said: "My advice to any private landlord or commercial unit owner is to ensure they know what tenants are doing.

"We often find that owners don't go to visit their sites.

"As for members of the public, if you see any suspicious activity, smell anything, see a lot of deliveries coming in and nothing coming out or a lot of people late at night then let us know."

Police are now gathering evidence and investigating the scene to identify suspects.

Public Health England celebrate after announcing a deal to open in Harlow from 2021

Vacant GSK site bought ready to be turned into £400m campus

Many leading scientists will work there

By William Mata

william.mata@hertsessexnews.co.uk

PUBLIC Health England (PHE) has bought the vacant GSK site in Pinnacles, Harlow, for a £400 million science campus.

Richard Gleaves, PHE deputy chief executive, ceremonially raised a flag outside the building on Friday alongside Harlow Council leader Jon Clempner and town MP Robert Halfon.

The centre will be used for research, health improvement and protection, with many of the world's top scientists working on site.

PHE is yet to secure planning permission, but Mr Gleaves said he felt confident the project would be passed through the local authority's planning committee.

He said: "We purchased the site from GSK (for £25 million) and it is now our building."

Fantastic

"It is fantastic value for the tax payer and Harlow is a fantastic location. We will do a lot of our work here."

"We will be bringing people in from our existing sites (in Wiltshire and north London) and we will be looking to fill all sorts of jobs."

PHE will submit a planning application in the coming weeks. This will also include proposals to convert the site, install new labs and a visitor centre.

The vacant GSK site in Pinnacles, Harlow

Under current plans the first PHE staff will move to Harlow in 2021, with the whole site operational by 2024.

At that time up to 2,650 people could be based there, with the potential for 3,250.

On the planning committee's decision, Cllr Clempner said: "I am not pre-determining the decision but GSK used it as a bio-research establishment so it is not a change of use."

"PHE have gone out of their way to engage. They have done an enormous amount of research, it is up to development management committee."

He added: "One of the important factors is that people have the right skills.

"The issue is making sure there are opportunities."

"We have got advanced manufacturing and web tech at Harlow Enterprise Zone."

"All these things need to come together and I am optimistic we will get there."

Karen Spencer, principal of Harlow College, said equipping students for life science careers was "very much" their focus.

Mr Halfon said bringing PHE to Harlow was "hard work" for a lot of individuals and called it the most significant development in the town for the past 50 years.

The Princess Alexandra Hospital accident and emergency department is to be revamped

Disruption to allow £1m A&E revamp will last ten weeks

Space in department will be limited during works

By William Mata

william.mata@hertsexnews.co.uk

THE accident and emergency department at Princess Alexandra Hospital (PAH) is set to undergo a revamp costing nearly £1 million.

Since Thursday, July 6, the entrance to the department of the infirmary in Hamstel Road, Harlow, has temporarily been moved to the ambulance entrance for walk-in patients as works begin.

PAH has said the building work, which costs £925,000, should last around ten weeks as the department is redesigned and structured to allow patients a safer and quicker passage. The hospital also warned there will be increased noise.

Life-threatening

A spokesman said: "We would like to stress that our emergency department is for patients with emergency and life-threatening illnesses only."

"During the building works the physical space in the department will be limited."

"We would ask that if you need to bring someone with you to the department that you limit this to one person only."

PAH is currently in special measures after an 'inadequate' rating following a CQC inspection last year.

Harlow Council has discussed the possibility of a new hospital but this latest announcement is a refurbishment of the existing site.

The spokesman added: "The Princess Alexandra Trust would like to apologise in advance for any disturbance and inconvenience these works may cause."

■ If you have any questions or concerns please contact a member of the PAH Patient Experience Team on PALS@pah.nhs.uk or call 01279 827211.

Academy teachers among the best paid in the county

Mark Hall Academy staff earning an average of £42,851 per year

By William Mata

william.mata@hertsessexnews.co.uk

TEACHERS at a Harlow school are among the best paid in Essex according to Department for Education statistics.

Staff at Mark Hall Academy in First Avenue earn an average of £42,851 per year, which is the third highest pay in the county.

The Greensward Academy in Hockley, where teachers earn an average £47,183 and King Edward VI Grammar School in Chelmsford (£44,023) are the two highest.

Experienced

Corinne Franceschi, principal at Mark Hall Academy, said: "Having one of the highest average teacher salaries in Essex reflects that teachers who join Mark Hall Academy choose to stay for many years and indicates a low turnover of teachers."

"This means that we have many highly experienced teachers and we are delighted that they choose to stay with us to build their careers and teaching experience whilst supporting us in our mission to enable pupils to be the best they can be."

"With a well-established teaching team, pupils receive the best possible education benefiting from a wealth of subject knowledge, strong pastoral care and supportive guidance."

Academy schools, while funded by the state, are independent of local authorities and do not have to teach the national curriculum.

They also have the power to vary teachers' pay and conditions. In Essex, which has an unusually high proportion of academy schools, all 17 of the state-funded secondaries with the highest teachers' wages are academies.

The statistics take into account the wages of head teachers and deputy head teachers.

Car travel commute cheaper than by rail

A REPORT carried out by a finance company has found that rail commuters from Harlow pay £1,463 more travelling into London each year than motorists.

The study, carried out by Marbles.com, found that Harlow commuters fork out a total of £4,500 per year on season tickets. Those who drive, pay £3,037 each year.

And those travelling by train can make it to Tottenham Court Road quicker than motorists, taking just 49 minutes.

Those who drive into London were found on average to complete their journey in 64 minutes.

The new research found significant differences between the time taken and the costs involved in taking either the car or train.

Marbles.com took into account the time associated with the morning commute train as well as the average value for insurance and MOT, and 55 per cent of London commuters were advised they could save time and or money by taking the train instead of their cars.

However, cars were found to be the winner on the majority of routes, being cheaper in 69 per cent of cases, including in Harlow, with an average saving on all routes being £609.50.

Ten friends take on Three Peaks Challenge - and win

Adventurers raise an incredible £6,623 for Breast Cancer UK

By William Mata

william.mata@hertsessexnews.co.uk

TEN Harlow men scaled the three highest peaks in England, Wales and Scotland in 24 hours to raise £6,623 for Breast Cancer UK.

The friends completed the Three Peaks Challenge last weekend in memory of Lisa Shepherd (nee Mahoney) who died aged 52 in November 2015 after losing her battle with the disease.

Mrs Shepherd, a mother-of-three and grandmother-of-four, was well-known in Harlow and for 28 years worked for Harlow Age Concern.

Her sons Paul and Bill Edwards were part of the group, as were: Andy Smith, Carl Smith, Jamie Smith, Rolph Gilson, Karl Schellenberg, Rory O'Brian, Jack Davies and Sammi Elgazzar.

Climb

They climbed Scafell Pike in Cumbria, Snowdon in Wales and Ben Nevis in Scotland with just five minutes to spare.

Andy Smith said: "Overall the challenge went very well. We started at 2pm on Friday at Ben Nevis.

"We allowed ourselves five hours to get up and down, and managed to fulfil this goal.

"Scafell Pike was by far the hardest climb. We started in pitch black darkness at 1am after a five and a half hour drive.

"It was the steepest, coldest, windiest, most challenging of climbs, but we managed it, taking slightly longer than anticipated.

"With the long drive from the Lake District to Wales we started to climb Mount Snowdon needing to make up 30 minutes to give us a chance of finishing within the 24 hour target."

Mrs Shepherd's husband Fred and her brother Tony were drivers for the walkers.

Mr Smith continued: "We climbed up the Pyg Trail which was shorter, but busier, and steeper.

"Once reaching the top the only way we were going to make it down in time was to take the Ranger Trail.

"This route was longer, but with a far more gentle descent gave us the opportunity to run or jog to the finish line.

"We gave it everything we had and officially finished with five minutes to spare. An amazing achievement by all."

11 drivers convicted in anti drink campaign

THE Essex Police anti-drink and drug driving campaign has led to 11 people being convicted of driving offences.

A total of 107 people were arrested as part of the summer campaign which ran between June 1 and June 30.

The scheme took a 'name and shame' approach, with anyone convicted of drink or drug driving offences having been arrested in that period being made known to the public.

Risk

Adam Pipe, Essex Police casualty reduction manager, hopes the campaign will prevent people getting behind the wheel while under the influence.

He said: "Too many people are still drink or drug driving in Essex and it puts lives at risk.

"No one wants to be associated with the fact they have been caught and convicted of drink or drug driving and I hope this acts as a deterrent to anyone thinking about doing it."

One of the more severe penalties was given to Scott Thompson, 43, following his arrest in Riverview, Grays on June 2.

He has been disqualified from driving for three years, fined £500 and ordered to pay £85 costs and £50 victim surcharge for drink driving.

Woman dumped household waste outside dance school

A WOMAN who dumped rubbish outside a dance school was fined after Harlow Council took her to court.

The local authority is celebrating a double legal victory after another man was also prosecuted for environmental offences. A senior councillor said the results send a "clear message".

Jessica Rowley, of Little Brays, Harlow, was fined £120 by Chelmsford Magistrates Court for leaving bags of household waste outside Makin' Steps Dance School in Little Brays.

Evidence

Harlow Council officers found evidence within the rubbish to identify her on January 31 and the case was brought to court after she failed to pay a fixed penalty notice.

Rowley will also pay costs of £180 and a victim surcharge of £30.

John Bowden of Glebe Avenue, Lincoln, was fined £660 after an incident on February 27 and also ordered to pay costs of £180 and a £66 victim surcharge.

Officers from the local

Action was taken against an overloaded scrap metal truck authority were notified that his truck was overloaded with scrap metal and when they attended the scene they found police were on the case.

Bowden could not produce documents licensing him to carry scrap metal and was ordered to pay a fixed penalty notice of £300, which he failed to pay within 14 days.

The court heard both cases on June 22. Both defendants have been given 14 days to pay the fines.

Councillor Danny Purton, portfolio holder for the environment, said: "I hope this sends a clear message to those who seek to dump rubbish and litter in our town.

"Harlow Council continues to take the issue of dumped rubbish, fly tipping and littering in Harlow seriously and will always take action when responding to reports."

Neon-clad walkers brave the dark to line-up at Harlow shopping centre start

By William Mata

william.mata@hertsessexnews.co.uk

HUNDREDS of neon-clad walkers lit up Harlow's streets for St Clare Hospice's Midnight Walk.

The fundraiser, which started late on Saturday, July 1, and finished in the early hours of Sunday, is expected to raise thousands for the Hastingwood-based charity.

Harlow shopping centre's water gardens was the start and finish point for the event which offered participants the chance to walk 5km or 10km around the town.

Jamie Hooper, event organiser, said: "The community has once again stepped up in support of its local hospice charity, for another year running, with an amazing party attitude."

"This year our midnight walkers did the Hospice proud - turning up in droves to support our biggest event of 2017 and helping to raise thousands of pounds of vital funding so we can continue providing our incredible care to local families."

Volunteers

Mr Hooper thanked all the participants, sponsors and volunteers who made the event possible.

The Midnight Walk is the biggest event on St Clare Hospice's calendar.

It is hoped once the donations have been added, the event will have raised £60,000.

The charity provides palliative and end of life care for patients on the West Essex and East Hertfordshire border and has annual running costs of around £4 million.

Mona Singh and Sarah Ayling were the first to complete the 5km and Marianne Levington, Lewis Levington-Poole and Myles Levington-Poole were the first around the 10km circuit.

Organisers estimate that nearly 400 people took part.

Lydia Straker, a student nurse at St Clare Hospice's day unit, said: "It was absolutely great."

"I loved it and I didn't stop singing and dancing the whole way round."

"It made such a nice change to our normal night out."

"It feels good to be able to give back and help St Clare, especially having worked as a student nurse there myself and having seen how much the patients and families appreciate the care we give."

■ TRAVELLERS

Most would agree with Jon

I WOULD suggest that to describe the injunction against illegal traveller camps as 'controversial' is wrong and that the vast majority of Harlow residents would wholeheartedly support Councillor Jon Clempner and Harlow Council in obtaining the injunction.

Only a tiny minority, probably with links to the travellers, would refer to Councillor Clempner as 'the most hated man in Harlow'.

I am not a great fan of Harlow's ruling Labour group but as a regular user of Harlow's cycle tracks I have noticed a huge reduction in fly-tipping in and around the cycle tracks since the original injunction was enforced.

Our local MP Robert Halfon does not appear to be on particularly good terms with the current government but it would be very useful if he joined forces with Harlow Council and used his position to lobby the government for a change in the law so that the council no longer needed to obtain these injunctions, and who knows, maybe Essex County Council might wake-up and realise they also have a part to play in this.

Roy Adams
Harlow

■ RUBBISH

Council orders add to problem

I ADMIRE Harlow Council's efforts to rid us of litter and detritus. However, seeing the council's orders on every corner, most blown apart to 40 pages or ripped apart by alcohol-fuelled hubris or animalistic interest, I'm wondering if there would have been less litter if the travellers had just been asked to 'clean up a bit'?

John Connolly

■ GARDEN FIRES

Spoiled our lovely Sunday

WE work all week, so a glorious day's sunshine over the weekend is something to celebrate. We live in a terrace of houses which back onto each other. We had all the doors and windows open on Sunday evening as we sat outside in the garden, enjoying a well-deserved drink.

An injunction has been made against travellers coming to Harlow – but is it right to call it controversial?

At 7pm our neighbours decided they would each light a fire in their garden fire bins and burn their garden rubbish, so we finished our weekend in doors with all the doors and windows closed and the fans on, as I'm sure every other family along the street did.

Why are people just so awful and uncaring? Neither neighbour works so I'm sure they could have found a more appropriate time.

Name and address not supplied

■ PLACE NAME CONTINUITY

Can we make up our minds

NOW that it appears that we do not need to go to the polls for a few weeks at least, I thought it a good time to make a non-political point.

In my opinion the only major difference between mankind and the animals is that we can communicate by writing. So that Chaucer or Dickens can speak to me direct via the written language.

Of course language changes. It should. New words are coined to describe new objects and thoughts.

Place names, less so. Could I ask those in charge to try for some sort of continuity?

Do Harlow folk live in Longbanks or Long Banks? The council signmakers show both within the area.

Milwards residents may be surprised to discover that their bus is going to Millwards.

A petty point maybe, but silly things like this could cause major problems for future historians as well as annoying a pedant like myself.

■ HARLOW

It's not the greatest Robert

HAVING lived in Old Harlow for over 20 years, I am appalled that our MP, Robert Halfon, continuously describes Harlow as "the greatest town in Britain".

According to crime statistics, with the recent murders and stabbings Harlow is classed as the worst in England, the number one black spot. Along with the town centre being well past its sell-by-date, this makes me think that Robert Halfon is living in a different place to me.

TWO students of Passmore Academy represented the Harlow school at the Teen Tech Awards at the Royal Society of Science.

Year 10 girls Mollie Smith and Abbie Morris visited the London centre at the end of June to present their design MasquerAID, a see-through medical mask.

The pair were chosen ahead of hundreds of entrants to show off their work which is designed to make communication less intimidating in a medical environment.

Thanks to the girls' hard work, Passmore, in Tracys Road, has been awarded Centre of Innovation and Creativity Silver status.

A magical night out and a great opportunity to raise your profile

WE are already halfway through the nomination process for the awards and with less than two months remaining until the application process comes to a close on August 25, the Essex Business Excellence Awards is in full swing.

The level of interest in this year's awards is no surprise, as the awards bring great benefits to everyone involved for a number of reasons...

Networking

From the get-go, the event is an opportunity to network with fellow high-profile businesses in the region and beyond. The 45-minute Champagne Reception allows sponsors, finalists and guests the chance to converse and build on their contact-base.

Pre-award events

Category sponsors and their shortlisted finalists across each of the 13 categories are invited to a lavish Champagne & Canapés evening to meet and network with finalists and sponsors.

Coverage for sponsors

Being involved with the awards on a headline or category sponsor level brings significant benefits, including extensive media coverage and interviews in local newspapers, including the Essex Chronicle, Brentwood Gazette, the Harlow Star and the Herts & Essex Observer. Sponsors' logos will also be prominently positioned across various awards collateral including online and on the media wall at the event.

Coverage for finalists

Being shortlisted as a finalist will lead to coverage in local newspapers as well as on the Essex Live website. Finalists' blurbs will also be included within the A4 brochure placed on all tables at the event.

Corporate Social Responsibility (CSR)

Throughout the evening, while primarily focussing on the success of Essex Businesses, the event will also provide an opportunity for all attendees to raise money for charity. This will not only provide the worthy charity with valuable funds, but will also help businesses add to their crucial CSR activities.

Wednesday, November 29 will see the awards reach their climax at The City Pavilion, Romford, where the winners of the 13 awards will officially be announced. The night is sure to be one to remember with the evening's proceedings commencing with a Champagne Reception before being compered by the evening's fantastic hosts Mark Dolan and Lucy Nicholls. Keeping guests entertained will be Jamie Raven, magician of Britain's Got Talent.

Event sponsor explains his reason for getting involved in event

Helping support businesses in a difficult climate

THE Essex Business Excellence Awards, set to take place on Wednesday, November 29, is welcoming a whole host of sponsors wanting to get involved with the awards.

Sponsors so far include Jewson, Rickard Luckin, HSBC, Wortley Byers, Inspirational Magazine London, Radio Essex and London Stansted Airport.

Adding to the sponsorship line-up is Choice Finance who are making their sponsorship debut at these awards.

Established in 2006, Choice Finance are a Mortgage & Insurance broker which has seen considerable growth in the last two years. Choice Finance offer a wide range of market advice from mortgages to protection such as home and life insurance. Despite many changes in the industry over the last few years, the company's values remain the same, ensuring they keep the client at the forefront of everything they do.

Matthew Pennell, managing director of Choice Finance, started the company in his home office and has watched it grow into the success it is today. Wanting to show his support for local businesses making their mark on Essex, Matthew explained the reasons why he believes the local community needs to come together to support events of this kind.

Climate

He said: "It's great to recognise business that are doing well in a hard financial climate. It gives recognition to those companies that are willing to go the extra mile in their selected field of expertise. It's also a great opportunity to speak with like-minded individuals that share the same ethos and values. Choice Finance Mortgages are proud to sponsor awards events such as this because it's a celebration of what businesses can achieve with great leadership and staff management."

The region is undeniably a thriving hub for businesses to set their foundations and reap the rewards of a successful business far into the future. Matthew identified just some of the reasons he believes Essex is a great place for business,

"Essex is a great place for business as over the years, due to its close location to the capital, it's become an epicentre for newly emerging businesses. This combined with the history of the long standing businesses means that Essex continues to attract new business ventures that it is important to support. Essex has a vast range of businesses with something for everyone, whether looking for a small boutique or a large national company – Essex has it all. Which makes it easier to share best practices, discuss further development or problem solving between the companies."

Growth

Choice Finance's future is sure to continue to soar and Matthew said of the year ahead, "In the next 12-months Choice Finance is focused on raising the company profile as the company still in its infancy, we intend to grow the business by exposing our profile to the market. Being a partner of Champions (UK) plc we are confident that this will help with our overall market exposure to grow the business in the right direction. We are looking to open up opportunities in different sectors of the financial services market and enhance our proposition to fulfil many requirements of our client and their needs."

The nomination process for the Essex Business Excellence Awards is in full swing and will remain open until 11.59pm on Friday 25 August. After that, the applications will be placed into the hands of the category judges where they will then whittle the nominations down to just three per category. DAUNTED BY HOW TO FILL YOUR CHILDREN'S DAYS DURING THE LONG SCHOOL SUMMER HOLIDAYS? HERE ARE SOME SURVIVAL TIPS FOR FAMILY HOLIDAY FUN AND GAMES, COME RAIN OR SHINE...

When the sun's shining

- Acquire supersoakers and water pistols from a pound shop and let them get on with it.
- Get the biggest paddling pool you can reasonably fit in your garden. It'll get used rain or shine - and wear them out nicely.
- Even the smallest of gardens can support a den - whether a teepee made from garden canes or a blanket slung over the washing line.
- Do some survival training: get them to pretend they're shipwrecked and give them a few random items with which to make a bivvy.
- Get them doing some 'real' gardening for you, such as clearing a bed of weeds or cleaning a patio. It will be taken on with pleasure by younger kids or can be a way of earning spending money for older ones.
- 'Challenge' them to wash the car.

When it's raining

- Put on raincoats and wellies and do some puddle jumping.
- If you're near a big city find out where the free museums are.
- Go to the library. Most have loads on.

- Contact your council to see what events the local museums and sports centres are holding for kids - there's often lots on for free.
- Thrill them with a 'muddy walk'. Put on old clothes and waterproofs, jump in all the mud and get as dirty as possible. Hose down before entering the house if necessary.
- Just go for a ride on a local train or take a bus trip round town - smaller kids love it.

Give yourself a break

- Dispatch child to a summer scheme for at least a few days of the holidays. And get your partner to take them camping and fishing for one night on his own.
- Book in a 'lazy day' each week where they have to pretty much entertain themselves and you can get things done.
- Introduce them all to some age-appropriate daily chores, such as sorting or pegging out the washing.
- Have a friend over at least once a week for each child. Chances are he or she will get an 'away day' playdate out of it in return.

Andy Serkis stars as Caesar in Matt Reeves' impressive War For the Planet Of The Apes

This time it's war

Monkey business becomes deadly serious in the third chapter of the rebooted sci-fi franchise.

Matt Reeves, who directed the thrilling 2014 instalment Dawn Of The Planet Of The Apes, retains his position at the helm of this cataclysmic showdown between the last remnants of mankind and genetically enhanced primates, who have collectively weathered the storm of Simian Flu.

So much of the picture relies on the latest motion-capture visual effects to translate performances of a gifted human cast into richly textured animal protectors and warriors.

The results are jaw-dropping.

Time and again, Reeves shoots pivotal scenes in close-up so we can see tears well in the creatures' eyes, or anguish ripple across their brows, as they face the stark possibility of extermination.

It's a glittering showcase for Andy Serkis' tour de force portrayal of the leader of the ape uprising, begging tantalising questions about where performance ends and state-of-the-art trickery begins.

Everyone has blood on their

WAR FOR THE PLANET OF THE APES (12A)

hands and Reeves' contemplative script, co-written by Mark Bomback, corrupts characters on both sides of the conflict in the name of survival.

The only winners, when the computer-enhanced dust settles after almost two-and-a-half hours, are audiences who have been on this rollercoaster since 2011 when the ALZ-113 virus ravaged the globe.

Twelve years have passed since that outbreak and Caesar (Serkis), his wife Cornelia (Judy Greer) and their two sons Blue Eyes (Max Lloyd-Jones) and Cornelius (Devyn Dalton) are living in exile in the woods with the rest of the apes.

The outcasts include wise Bornean orangutan Maurice (Karin Konoval), chimpanzee Rocket (Terry Notary) and brave Western lowland gorilla Luca (Michael Adamthwaite).

Under the cover of darkness, Colonel McCullough (Woody Harrelson) and his sharp-shooting soldiers stage an assault on the ape stronghold and kill most of Caesar's family.

The grief-stricken leader orders the survivors to flee in search of a new home while he exacts revenge on the Colonel.

Maurice, Rocket and Luca defy Caesar's orders and join him on the long and arduous trek to locate the military in their mountainside stronghold.

En route, they encounter an outcast chimpanzee called Bad Ape (Steve Zahn), who escaped from his zoo enclosure, and an orphaned girl (Amiah Miller), who has been rendered mute by the virus.

Maurice becomes a surrogate parent to the child as Caesar continues his quest for retribution.

"They must pay," he growls.

War For The Planet Of The Apes is a fitting conclusion to several key storylines, which are underscored by composer Michael Giacchino's magnificent orchestral score.

Serkis and Harrelson face off in a series of increasingly brutal set pieces that hammer home the senseless loss of life on both sides of the ideological divide.

Reeves harnesses impressive technical might without obscuring the raw emotions that course beneath each digitally-enhanced frame.

CARS 3 (U)

The second sequel to the 2006 computer-animated comedy Cars continues the misadventures of anthropomorphised vehicles, who orbit championship racing car Lightning McQueen (voiced by Owen Wilson) as he ponders retiring from the track.

Fond memories of mentor Doc Hudson (Paul Newman) compel Lightning to hit the comeback trail and he heads to the Rust-eze Racing Center where trainer Cruz Ramirez (Cristela Alonzo) promises to improve Lightning's speed and stamina.

Cars 3 is the most poignant film in the series, striking a pleasing balance between heartfelt sentiment, belly laughs and dazzling artistry.

Admittedly, director Brian Fee does not reinvent the steering wheel but he does tinge even the most colour-saturated scenes with aching sadness and a wistful yearning for the simple pleasures of the past.

THE BEGUILLED (15)

Virginal beauty is sin deep in Oscar-winning writer-director Sofia Coppola's fable of female empowerment, based on the novel by Thomas P. Cullinan.

Set against the backdrop of the American Civil War, The Beguiled lovingly reupholsters a shabby Gothic melodrama starring Clint Eastwood with stunning cinematography courtesy of Philippe Le Sourd and impeccable production design.

The focus of Coppola's version is an isolated household of women and girls led by Nicole Kidman, who unwittingly invite a wolf in military clothing (Colin Farrell) into their hen house, and must take control of their destiny, using force if necessary. The Beguiled largely delivers on the intoxicating promise of the title, casting a heady spell as the females of the species unite in adversity.

HOTSEAT

Ripper Street star MyAnna Buring is on the right side of the law in her latest role for new thriller In The Dark. MARION McMULLEN finds out more about her role as a top cop

In order to deal with the horrors of police work, humour and sarcasm can be useful tools

What is your character Detective Helen Weeks like?

HELEN is a detective and is very driven by her work. She is doggedly dedicated to unearthing the truth for a living yet, like all good heroines, she has her own dark secret buried deep in her past.

The series is very much a tale in two parts – in the first two episodes Helen's secret resurfaces to haunt her and she must confront and face the demons from her past.

Then in the last two episodes we join her as she wrangles with her present and her future.

How would you describe her?

THERE'S a toughness to her and a maverick quality. I think writer Danny Brocklehurst has brought that sense of maverick-ness out in a lot of the characters – they don't always follow the rules but they have a strong moral code. Characters are always so much more fun that way.

Helen is witty, determined, and compassionate. A woman who left the small town she grew up in as soon as she could to carve out a new life for herself in the city.

Danny's scripts allow us to follow her and her loved ones as they navigate incredibly difficult, emotional territory.

She definitely goes on a journey.

How did you prepare for the role?

AS ALWAYS, I get most of my information from the script.

It was Danny's script that informed the structure that I hung Helen's coat on (so to speak). Then I went to novelist Mark Billingham's books to add in more layers.

There were certain elements that had changed in Danny's

MyAnna with Matthew Macfadyen and Adam Rothenberg in the BBC drama Ripper Street

interpretation of Mark's books and in this instance it felt good for me to know that difference and find a truth between the two.

I also researched what pregnancy was like for different women, then cherry-picked for myself what possible aspects fitted best with Helen's experience and what we needed her to be able to do – how pregnancy affected her physically and emotionally, how she would feel about being pregnant.

I did some research into abuse and grief, particularly looking into what that might mean for somebody working in the police force.

Did anything surprise you?

I FOUND interesting a sort of gallows' humour that exists within the police force. It seems characteristic of working in a job that isn't always pleasant or easy.

In order to deal with the horror, humour and sarcasm can be useful tools. I think this comes through in the script too. Helen has a wry sense of humour.

What do you hope the audience takes from In The Dark?

WHAT I hope we have been able to achieve is a plethora of characters that audiences can really invest in – that they can go on a journey with, care for, be moved by.

In this series, we are dealing with so many different issues and crises; it's a roller-coaster ride of a thriller.

I feel very much that all the characters are real human beings –

Yes we scan: MyAnna Buring researched what pregnancy was like for different women for her In The Dark character

With In The Dark, Danny Brocklehurst has taken just a few of these stories and beautifully distilled them into four cracking high octane episodes.

Helen has very much been highlighted from the books and she's a character that for me was really interesting and fun to invest in, and I hope, will be interesting to invest in for the audience too.

What was it like working with French director Gilles Bannier and Norwegian director Ulrik Imtiaz Rølsen?

WITH In The Dark, you have two stories that are absolutely connected yet they are very different. So to have two directors on board was actually really helpful. We got to really explore that difference.

The police thriller genre is one that both the French and Scandinavians have done incredibly well and are well known for across the world.

So it's great to have a real celebration of that.

We were interested to see if new things would come to the surface by having different directors look at this part of Britain with foreign eyes – if different elements would pop up in the storytelling.

You'll have to watch and decide for yourself if you think it does.

■ In The Dark starts on BBC1 on Tuesday at 9pm.

they are flawed, they're not perfect and that is what makes them interesting, not only to play but also to watch.

How have the bestselling novels been adapted?

MARK BILLINGHAM has created this sprawling universe that is so suspenseful and he's managed to create this across so many books.

BOOKSHELF

Former world number one and bad boy of tennis John McEnroe claims he's mellowed - but not completely. He tells HANNAH STEPHENSON about fatherhood, fame and love second time around

HE USED to be known for his on-court rages, coining the phrase 'You cannot be serious!' at a Wimbledon umpire in 1981, a line which became as connected to him as his numerous tennis victories.

More than 35 years on, John McEnroe, three-times Wimbledon singles champion and respected BBC commentator, is still courting controversy.

First he said Andy Murray was a 'distant fourth' behind the three main rivals in the Scot's career, Novak Djokovic, Roger Federer and Rafael Nadal, and most recently declared Serena Williams would be ranked '700 in the world' if she had to play on the men's circuit.

Yep, still causing a stir - but he's long since learned to volley away criticism and serve up some self-deprecating humour.

"I'm not mellow compared to the average person, but I'm certainly a lot mellow than I was," he says, gazing out of the window towards the Thames and the Shard, as we sit in his publisher's offices.

He's promoting his second autobiography, But Seriously. His first, 2003's Serious, charted his childhood and early days of tennis - which progressed to seven Grand Slam singles titles, the 'Superbrat' reputation and a tumultuous eight-year marriage to actress Tatum O'Neal, marred by her addiction battles, his hot temper and a prolonged custody battle for their three children.

Now, the follow-up deals with his struggles to reinvent himself as a father, art collector, musician and broadcaster, his relationship with second wife Patty Smyth, and his efforts to be the best father he could to his six children (he has another two daughters and a step-daughter with Patty).

By his own admission, he's been a strict disciplinarian, which hasn't always gone down well.

"If you asked some of my kids, they wouldn't say I'm mellow. I find it ironic that I'm the one more often than not calming Patty down. If you don't mature and mellow and have a better overview and perspective of things at 58, you are going to be a kid your entire life."

They met at a party in 1993, when he was going through his divorce and was at a low ebb.

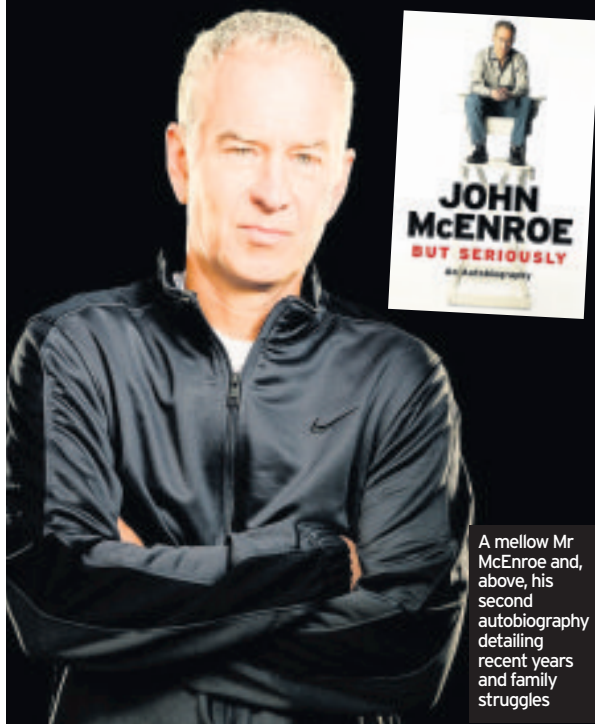

"If there's any credit for the faint possibility I might have become a slightly better, less selfish person over the last 20 years, the bulk of that should go to Patty," he writes.

After retiring from professional tennis in 1992, at first, he admits he filled the space by smoking more marijuana than he should have done. He stopped when he discovered his children, then in their early teens, were pinching his stash, while Tatum accused him of being a drug addict during the custody battle.

"I was going through a difficult time in my personal life.

Sometimes it's hard to look in the mirror and face up to things," he says now.

If you don't mature you'll be a kid your entire life

A mellow Mr McEnroe and, above, his second autobiography detailing recent years and family struggles

Two years ago, his eldest son Kevin was arrested for what was thought to be possession of cocaine and prescription drugs. Although the substance found on him was baking soda, his father asked himself what he'd done wrong.

"I felt terrible. His mom had been arrested close by and I couldn't believe it had happened. I was very shocked."

He clarifies his feelings in the book. "I don't want to go into details about my ex-wife's side of the family, but let's just say if you were looking for a stabilising influence as a grandparent, you probably wouldn't choose Ryan O'Neal (Tatum's father)."

"Kevin was always such a good person that it's been painful to watch him struggling, but I'm proud of how hard he's worked to get his life back on track over the last couple of years."

Relations with Sean, his second son who has always gravitated towards his mother (and changed his surname to O'Neal), are more difficult. John says he wishes he'd been more sympathetic about the impact of being the son of a high-profile couple in a painful divorce.

"One time when I dropped Sean off I was really afraid that he'd go up and find her dead on the floor. I know that he was deeply affected by that. It was a frightening time. I wish I'd been more sympathetic as to how he was feeling. He's 29 and it seems like we've been unable recently to see eye to eye.

"We speak infrequently. We're in touch through texting or emailing, but I'm hopeful that changes tomorrow.

"I've tried my best," he continues. "On some levels, I haven't been as sympathetic to what it's like to grow up as the son or daughter of John McEnroe and how people look at them. I felt I was doing a reasonably good job. But there are always two sides to a story."

He has little contact with his ex-wife. "Do you call keeping in touch occasional email and occasional text? It's gotten to the point where the best thing for me personally is just as little [contact] as possible, but that might not be the best for my kids with Tatum. They want you to have a good relationship and I totally understand that and I feel bad that we don't. I know that I can't blame it all on her, as much as I'd like to."

In a recent interview, Kevin said his father was a tough disciplinarian and indicated he was still seeking his father's approval.

"A lot of kids do that. At some level I had that with my own father. I mean, how many Wimbledons is enough? How many years do I have to be number one?"

"I tell this story where my dad finished second in law school out of 450 people and my mom said, 'Why weren't you first?' I'm like my parents. That's in part why I became who I am."

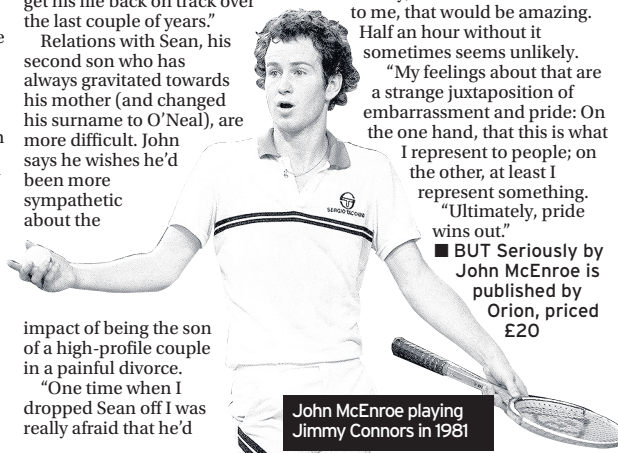

He never pushed his children into tennis. However, he recalls how, when he'd watch them at sports events, other parents expected him to react.

"Sometimes I'd sit there and not say anything, while parents are expecting me to explode. Then after the event, my kids would say, 'God, you didn't say anything!'

You can't win. As for fame, he reflects: "If a whole day passed when someone didn't say, 'You cannot be serious!' to me, that would be amazing. Half an hour without it sometimes seems unlikely."

"My feelings about that are a strange juxtaposition of embarrassment and pride: On the one hand, that this is what I represent to people; on the other, at least I represent something. "Ultimately, pride wins out."

EUREKA by Anthony Quinn, Jonathan Cape, £14.99 (ebook £9.99)

SET to the soundtrack of The Beatles in London's swinging Sixties, Anthony Quinn's Eureka is chock-a-block with sex, drugs and rock n roll, gangsters, arson, unrequited love and the decriminalisation of homosexuality.

Gregarious screenwriter Nat Fane is where he loves to be - at the centre of attention. Through him we meet aspiring actress Billie Cantrip, journalist Freya Wyley, German wunderkind film director Reiner Werther Kloss and gangster kingpin Harry Pulver, as well as a host of other film types.

The story follows the filming of Nat's latest screenplay fuelled by acid trips and written almost scene by scene as they're filming it. The drama of Nat's script parallels the drama of his own life, so closely that characters and stories seem to merge into one.

Immersive and compelling.

HOW TO STOP TIME by Matt Haig, Canongate, £12.99 (ebook £6.74)

THIS fantasy/adventure centres on Tom Hazard, a man who is more than 400 years old, ages at an incredibly slow rate, and has sworn not to fall in love with a normal "mayfly" human.

Trapped in the past as he mourns his centuries-old first love, Rose, Hazard meets Camille, who sparks a process of self-discovery in which he questions what it is to really live. He reflects on his time as a lute player for Shakespeare, a crew member on Captain Cook's voyage, and a jazz pianist bumping elbows with F. Scott Fitzgerald in a boozed up corner of Paris.

Despite spanning continents and time, his most challenging terrain is internal, as he comes to accept himself as he is.

This is a refreshing exploration of how to make peace with one's past selves and future possibilities in a world where moments seem to rush past faster than ever.

SOUND OUT

The Vamps are preparing to release a slew of new material from recent recording sessions

As The Vamps release their latest album, Night, they talk to JOE NERSSESSIAN about keeping up with fans' demands and how they are helping the next generation of bands find success with their own label

THE NIGHT MANAGERS

N October last year, following a 12-month long world tour, pop boy band The Vamps shook off their One Direction comparisons and released smash hit All Night. The foursome, Brad Simpson, Connor Ball, Tristan Evans, and James McVey, shot to fame in late 2012 after meeting online and recording a number of cover tracks on YouTube.

Now, five years on and two albums later, the boys are releasing a third record in two phases.

Part one, Night, is out in mid-July and will continue with the band's newer electronic-dance sound they adopted on All Night, although Connor promises some acoustic ballads have also made the cut.

The decision to double up was partly to accommodate the number of songs they had written but also to satisfy the growing demand from fans for more material.

"People release albums once a year now," says Tristan, 22.

"Ours are a little more delayed but I think we do take time and they are right."

Brad interrupts: "With the first two we wrote about 50 to 70 songs for each album and we all got attached to certain songs that didn't make it. But with having a two-parter we get to release a lot more. It's always great to have more material out there."

"Especially now, when people are releasing stuff all the time and consumers want something instant."

He continues: "People want music in the same way they are consuming Facebook videos or anything else. They want it quickly because they are so tuned into it, so I think we'll release more material as and when it's written."

It's hard to imagine how difficult an interview for the rest of the band may be without 21-year-old Brad.

The Vamps will be touring to support their new release Night

He speaks eloquently about the band's direction, and while happy to laugh along when one of the others cracks a joke, he tends to be the first to then adopt a serious tone and begin answering the question.

For the album, they held a writing camp in Peter Gabriel's studio near Bath, previously used by everyone from Kanye West to Kylie Minogue.

Essentially a brainstorming session, the Vamps kicked ideas around with a number of musicians and writers including The Ordinary Boys' Sam Preston, pianist Will Sims, singer-songwriter Bryn Christopher and US record producer Matt Rad.

"That's where Middle Of The Night was written," says Brad, referring to the second track off the Night album.

"We all went down there and spent a week in this incredible studio and got a load of songs out of that," he adds.

"It was very weird to begin with," says Tristan. "We got there and there were something like 25 people sitting around this massive table eating lunch and this is all here for us."

"Obviously every one who is a writer or a producer is either a musician or has been in a band themselves, so they are all on the same wavelength, it's all about exploring our creative artistry."

The guys are about to go on tour with Little Mix across Europe

At the time of our interview they are just about to go on tour with Little Mix across Europe, and they're looking at the chance to spend time on the road with one of Britain's most successful pop groups as a learning experience.

"It will also be a great chance to know them better," says 21-year-old Connor.

"We spent time with them over the past few years on pop festival bills and we've had a couple of nights out with them, but going on the road is always different."

After that, the boys are promoting Night with a tour of their own across the UK.

Not only have they released three albums in four years, but the boys are also signing young bands to their own label, Steady Records.

After finding their own success via social media, they want to help other bands do the same with the label, an offshoot from EMI/Universal. So far they have signed US band The Tide and, more recently, British trio New Hope Club who caught their eye on the latest social media app for budding musicians, Musical.ly.

"Connor's the Simon Cowell of the label," says James, 23, as the four fall about giggling.

After a minute or two, Brad cuts through the noise.

"It's a really good way to find talent. We want to see young bands coming through and we're very conscious of making sure people we sign are driven by the music. The New Hope Club and The Tide are."

"They are musicians at the core and songwriters, that's where their focus goes and it's the same for us."

■ The Vamps' album Night is out on July 14 on EMI Records.

TORO Y MOI

FOCUSING inward and a renewed love for the ambient music that heavily guided Chaz Bear's early work, he has always subtly danced around various genres. His latest, Boo Boo, sees him eschewing the lo-fi indie of previous LP What For? in place of the kind of spatial, glossy, house-infused R&B that saw him turn heads at the start of the decade. To use his own words, Bear falls in love with space again.

The 12 tracks that follow are thoughtful, soulful and arguably his most complete collection of songs since those breakthrough years. While many of the stars of that DIY scene seem to have drifted somewhat, Toro Y Moi continues to prove an intriguing lasting power.

SOMETHING TO TELL YOU

RECORDED mainly in the front room of the trio's parents house, the songs are layered high - sometimes in fact too high, particularly in the case of the final track Night So Long. Heavy handedness in the studio is apparent throughout but there is obvious catchiness too, with Want You Back and Little Of Your Love.

Despite its shortcomings, expect this record - and Danielle Haim's rich American vocals - to further increase their growing influence both here and in the US. But whatever fans make of this album, Courteeners' frontman Liam Fray may have gone too far with his assertion on Twitter earlier this month that Haim are "one of the best and most important bands" of the past two decades.

LITTLE BARRIE

GAMERS will recognise the band from track Surfer Hell and fans of Breaking Bad will be happy to find the theme to Better Call Saul nestled at the end of this very album.

The songs stick to a great lo-fi aesthetic. The lyrics don't explicitly refer to the current state of the world but there is some heavy subtext on tracks like Copter and Vulture Swarm.

The drums on some tracks have a breakbeat quality to them, complemented by Lewis Wharton's pulsing bass. Little Barrie's guitar work is on point throughout, running the gamut from wailing solos to juddering rhythms. Recommended.

CHILLI KICKS

LIME-CHILLI CORN AND CRISPY ONIONS

This quick-and-easy recipe for a fiery and crunch side salad has tang from feta and heat from chilli. What more could you want?

INGREDIENTS (Serves 2)

3tbsp rapeseed oil or olive oil
1/2 red onion, thinly sliced
1tbsp plain flour
2 ears of fresh corn, kernels cut off with a knife
1.5tsp honey
Juice of 1/2 lime
1/2-1 jalapeno chilli, finely chopped
30g feta, crumbled
Salt

METHOD:

1. Line a plate with kitchen paper. Heat the oil in a small frying pan over a high heat, then reduce to medium-low.

Toss the onion with the flour and fry in the oil until golden. Remove from the pan, leaving some of the oil, and place the onions on the plate. Sprinkle with salt and set aside.

2. Put the pan back on the heat. Add the corn kernels and turn the heat to high. Cook, stirring occasionally, until the corn is nice and hot. Add the honey, lime juice and jalapeno chilli and mix well. Season to taste.

3. Transfer to a serving dish, adorn with some feta and crispy onions and serve.

IZY HOSSACK, 20, IS A STUDENT AND FOOD BLOGGER. SHE TELLS ELLA WALKER HOW FEEDING HERSELF AT UNI TRANSFORMED HOW SHE COOKS

Get busy with Izy

IZY HOSSACK is celebrating finishing her second year at Leeds University, where she studies food science and nutrition, by publishing her second recipe collection, The Savvy Cook.

The 20-year-old foodie is best known for her blog, Top With Cinnamon, and matching Instagram account (229k followers and counting), where she posts beautifully-lit photos of oozing chocolate chip cookies and chunks of pecan-studded brownies.

The Savvy Cook, however, draws on how she went about feeding herself as a first-year student.

"I'd baked a lot, but I hadn't ever really cooked for myself throughout the whole week, and I had to go food shopping and budget," recalls Izy.

She started menu planning, pooling recipes from cookbooks and online to "keep it interesting", and the result is a stack of simple, intriguing recipes that help you plan ahead, cut waste and stick to your budget.

"I always do that thing where you buy a big bag of spinach because you don't want to buy the tiny one, and then it goes slimy and you never use it up," admits Izy, so she developed a leftovers section, where anything spare from one recipe can be cross-referenced with other meals it'll fit into.

The Savvy Cook offers gluten-free and vegan slants on recipes too, so you can avoid that moment when "you're cooking for friends and one's vegan and one's gluten-free, and you're just thinking, 'I don't know what to cook you!'"

Food that's accessible, regardless of income or nutritional needs, is crucial to Izy's ethos - which means no obscure ingredients, either. In fact (supermarket-friendly) tahini and miso are as exotic as it gets, and they're featured in multiple recipes, so it's not like

"buy this jar of expensive ingredient and let it sit in your cupboard for the next six months!"

Fads then, are a resounding 'No!'

"It's so enraging when you're a nutritionist and you read these headlines," says Izy, shooting down the coconut oil trend.

"It's so exclusionary - it's the whole organic vegetable thing, and superfoods. To be healthy, you have to have enough money to buy this thing, and buying plain tomato isn't good enough any more; you have to have the organically grown, biodynamic thing, with spirulina and you have to have turmeric in EVERYTHING you eat," she says, incredulous. "It's hard enough to get people to eat enough fibre and vegetables!"

Izy, who went to an all-girls school and started baking by herself aged around 10, might have written her first cookbook, Everyday Deliciousness, during her AS-levels, but that doesn't mean she was exempt from the pressures around food.

"I went through a phase of maybe three or four years in my teens, constantly dieting and over-exercising," she remembers. "I used to think you could have anorexia, bulimia, or orthorexia (an obsession and anxiety over healthy eating), but now I realise there's more of a spectrum, and I definitely was on the spectrum of that. I wasn't getting admitted into hospital - I wasn't anywhere near that - but I definitely had issues around food."

"But I think, through blogging and speaking to other nutritionists, doing my course, the general backlash against clean eating, and body positivity coming out, it's given me more confidence, so now I'm happy."

"I'm going to eat butter; I'm going to eat cake; I'm a nutritionist - I don't care, I'm going to eat sugar, whatever! I know I'm eating a balanced diet and I'm happy with where I am, but I think we have to do a lot more in the future to help younger women, and show them you don't have to be eating 'clean' to be happy."

■ The Savvy Cook by Izy Hossack, photography by Izy Hossack, is published in hardback by Mitchell Beazley, priced £14.99.

Izy is making sure she eats well at university - and her book means everyone else can, too

THE other week I was in the wine aisle of a shop, just looking, no intention of buying. I'm the wine aisle equivalent of someone who sits in a Ford Fiesta on a Sunday eating ice cream, staring out to sea, pointing out occasional things of interest to nobody in particular.

A young lady walked past several times, agitated, searching high and low. Perhaps she needed advice. As I steadied for the approach she exclaimed "oh, there!" picked up a bottle of Lambrini and scurried away.

I recounted this story when I was invited by Lambrini to taste test their latest drink, Hey Blueberry. No matter what you think of Lambrini, this happily priced range of perry-based fruit drinks is a winner with many a girlie gathering.

RAISE A GLASS

WITH JANE CLARE

My challenge was to spot the new Lambrini in a blind tasting of three drinks. If I'd put my brain in gear first, and remembered that the name of the drink was Hey Blueberry (£3, 75cl, exclusive to Tesco, 5% abv) I might have fared better.

All the drinks had a blueberry theme, but I didn't spot blueberry in any of them - and I thought a blueberry-themed cider with lime was in fact the Lambrini. It was a bit of a #doh moment. I don't know why you trust me (maybe you don't).

When the Lambrini was revealed, I checked my notes. I'd described it like this: aromas - sherbert, elderflower, drops of vanilla, citrus, bit of stone fruit; flavours - lemonade, simple flavours, not long-lasting but refreshing.

When I dipped in the glass again, after the event, then yes, I spotted the blueberry theme.

What did I think? Well as a simple refreshing light drink on a warm day it would be pretty nice, though I couldn't drink more than a couple of glasses. I'd be happy to use it as the base of a sangria, tumbled into a jug with a bottle of cheerful rioja and lots of fresh fruit and ice.

ALSO IN MY GLASS...

I EXPLORED Spanish grenache wines with Ricardo Arrambari, general manager of Vintae wines when he visited the UK. Here's one for you. La Garnacha 2015 Salvaje del Moncayo (£8.99 in a buy six deal at Majestic, £9.99 a bottle until July 30; also The Wine Society, £7.95, 13.5% abv)

The grapes are grown on rocky soils on the north face of Moncayo mountain and so this wine has the character of a cool climate red, not an in-your-face hot and sunbed-crazy garnacha. It is a light style, like a pinot noir, with herbs, violets, cherries, raspberries, and a hint of spice.

Here's something a little bit different: Château Changyu Moser XV 2015 Cabernet Sauvignon (£8.50, Tesco, 14% abv) A chateau has been built near Yinchuan, the capital city of Ningxia province in China and winemaking is overseen by Austrian Lenz Moser, the 15th winemaking generation of his family. The cab sav has aromas of black fruits, including bramble, blackberry and black cherry with hints of vanilla. Those same fruits show up as flavours too, and a savoury woodiness is also pronounced. China is becoming a big wine producer on the world stage so this is interesting to try.

In a rush but need something filling and tasty? Try a bowl of this garlicky carby goodness.

INGREDIENTS: (Serves 2)

125g dried pasta or 250g cooked
4tbsp olive oil or rapeseed oil
1tbsp plain white flour
300ml vegetable/chicken stock
20g Parmesan, finely grated (or other hard cheese)
1 bay leaf
4 large sage leaves
100g chestnut or button mushrooms, sliced
3tbsp dried breadcrumbs
1 crushed/finely chopped garlic clove
Salt

METHOD:

1. Place dried pasta in a pan and cover with just-boiled water from the kettle. Bring to the boil and cook until al dente (generally less than the cooking time on the packet). Drain, reserving a small mugful of the pasta water.
2. Heat one tablespoon of the oil in a medium pan over a medium heat. Add the flour and stir for one minute then reduce the heat to low and gradually pour in the stock, stirring well between additions, until all the stock has been added. Stir in the Parmesan and add the bay leaf. Simmer for five minutes, stirring occasionally, then season with salt to taste.

3. Heat the remaining oil in a frying pan over a medium-high heat. Add the sage and fry until crisp. Drain on kitchen paper and set aside.
4. Add the sliced mushrooms to the pan and cook over a medium heat for five to seven minutes until dark and soft. Pour the cooked mushrooms into the sauce and return the frying pan to the heat.

5. Add the breadcrumbs, garlic and a pinch of salt to the frying pan and toast, stirring constantly but gently, for two minutes, so the garlic cooks and the breadcrumbs are crisped.
6. Remove the bay leaf from the sauce and pour it over the cooked pasta. Stir together and splash in a little of the reserved pasta water to loosen the mixture, if needed. Divide between dishes and top with the mushrooms, breadcrumbs and crispy sage, and serve.

SAGE AND GARLIC
PASTA

When you need a slab of something sweet, this chocolatey bake should hit the spot.

INGREDIENTS: (SERVES 6)

80ml olive oil, rapeseed oil or melted unsalted butter, plus extra for greasing
80g oat flour, plus extra for dusting (blend 80g of any type of plain oats you have in a food processor, until it becomes a rough flour)
80g ground almonds
80g soft brown sugar
¼tsp salt
½tsp baking powder
1 large egg
4tbsp milk or non-dairy milk
½tsp almond extract
35g plain dark chocolate (at least 70% cocoa solids), finely chopped
100g frozen or fresh raspberries

To serve:

Whipped cream or natural yoghurt
Fresh raspberries

METHOD:

1. Preheat the oven to 180°C fan/200°C/Gas Mark 6 and grease a 23cm cake tin with oil, then dust with flour, tipping out any excess.

2. Mix the ground almonds, oil, sugar, flour, salt, baking powder, egg, milk and almond extract in a medium bowl until smooth. Pour the batter into the prepared tin. Sprinkle over the chopped chocolate and raspberries and slightly swirl them into the batter with a spoon.

3. Bake in the oven for 30-35 minutes until the middle of the cake springs back when you apply light pressure with your finger.

4. Remove from the oven and leave the cake to cool in the tin. Once completely cooled, slice and serve as is, or with whipped cream or yoghurt and fresh raspberries.

BEAUTY COUNTER

Co-wash can give curly hair added bounce

It's the beauty buzzword of 2017, but if you're still confused about co-wash, we have the answers

Will new hair 'holy grail' get yours in mint condition?

EVERY so often a buzzword crops up in the beauty world, a technique or product that devotees will tell you is miraculous, nothing short of life-changing.

This year's most-hyped? It's got to be 'co-wash', the hair-cleansing holy grail converts swear will make you ditch shampoo forever.

Detractors, however, claim it's impossible to make it to that promised land – unless you're willing to put up with a solid week of greasy, dirty hair.

Confused? So were we, so we spoke to the experts to find out what the deal with co-wash really is...

WHAT IS CO-WASH?

SHORT for 'conditioner only wash', co-wash is a "low-foaming cleanser that helps to detoxify the hair without stripping colour," says Danielle Llewellyn, UK hair ambassador for eSalon.

Schwarzkopf Professional ambassador Gary Taylor says co-wash allows you to have "clean, shiny and healthy hair by not stripping it of its natural oils".

WHAT ARE THE BENEFITS OF CO-WASH?

"THE benefit of a cleansing cream is it functions as an all-in-one product.

"It is strong enough to cleanse, balance natural oils, and pump up moisture without weighing hair down," Danielle explains.

Gary adds: "They offer everything we need and want from a shampoo and conditioner but with less hassle, and essentially the hair is much more manageable as the condition of the hair is better."

WHAT HAIR TYPE IS CO-WASH BEST FOR?

ANY hair type can use co-wash, but Sacha Mitic, co-founder of Sachajuan hair care, says: "the Sachajuan Hair Cleansing Cream has more advantages the more damaged the hair is."

Danielle agrees, insisting that "curly-haired ladies will love the added bounce and improved manageability".

HOW DO YOU USE CO-WASH?

"IN the shower, use an ample amount, massage from roots to ends and work the cream into a lather.

"Don't worry if there is not a heavy foam," Danielle advises.

"The major trick in the shower is adding water to increase the lather, rather than using more product, and letting it set for two to three minutes."

DOES IT TAKE TIME TO GET USED TO CO-WASH?

HERE'S what they don't tell you on the back of the bottle.

"On average, it takes about a week for the hair and scalp to adjust to this new way of cleaning."

Sacha warns, during which time you may miss that feeling of squeaky clean hair.

But if you apply the product correctly and persevere, you'll be rewarded with shiny, healthy-looking hair.

As Sacha puts it: "It gives the customer a different feeling and touch to the hair."

Use an ample amount of co-wash in the shower and massage from the roots to the ends

■ WE all know how important oxygen is right? Because obviously we can't live without it.

But could an extra hit of O2 be the key to better skin? That is the claim behind Boost Oxygen Beauty. Oxygen stimulates the body's natural healing function as it is anti-inflammatory and stimulates collagen production, so a few breaths of this could, in theory, help you feel and look better.

So what did we make of it? Well, first we never realised that it could be so difficult to breathe in, but it turned out we had the can the wrong way around... doh! And there were a few funny looks in the office at the sound of us inhaling and exhaling like Darth Vader.

Frankincense and pink grapefruit aromas have been added to enhance the experience and process of oxygen absorption and it does smell really nice to breathe in. The instructions recommend three to five inhalations a day or at times of need. That turned out to be straight after a boxing class when a few breaths of this definitely made us feel calmer and more relaxed. The jury's out on whether our skin looked any better afterwards though.

PROPERTY TALK

With Nigel Lewis

WHERE VANDERBILT MARRIAGE FELL APART

The name Vanderbilt had the same ring to it for many people during the early 20th century as the Kardashians do today.

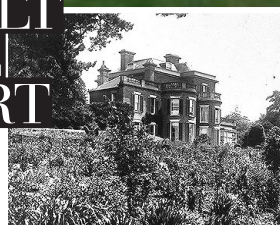

The Vanderbilts were a wealthy and glamorous family who had a fortune from railways and shipping (rather than reality TV) but they were just as much gossiped about.

By the early 20th Century the most talked about member of the clan was Consuelo Vanderbilt who, as heiress to the fortune, wanted to marry her US boyfriend.

Her mother had other ideas. She was married in 1895 against her will to Charles Spencer Churchill, 9th Duke of Marlborough and cousin of Winston.

After a marriage in New York the pair moved to Berkeley House near Faversham in Kent where previously flat-broke Charles enjoyed his new-found £75m fortune (in today's money) while she unhappily got on with producing two sons.

Winston was a frequent visitor to the house. But after a short while the marriage was in name only and Charles and Consuelo both had extra-marital affairs.

They separated in 1906, divorced in 1921 and the marriage was annulled five years later. Quickie divorces did not exist then, even for the rich.

The house they lived in, like their marriage, went up in flames shortly after WWII but a new property was built on the site, which is now for sale. Although lacking in the Victorian stature of its predecessor, it is far more practical for today's lifestyles.

Hillside Berkeley House enjoys the same views over Kent as its predecessor and has six bedrooms, five stables, huge garden and a swimming pool. It's for sale at £1.1 million.

More information from Humberts, 01227 452780.

First Lady Jackie's former home is as glamorous as the lady herself

WOW...

S style icon Jackie Kennedy enjoyed less than three years beside her husband JFK as First Lady before he was shot on November 22, 1963 in Texas. But before that fateful day in Dallas, there was a property that Jackie felt summed up everything happy in her life. And that was the Merrywood estate in Virginia. It was where she moved to in 1940 after her mother divorced and moved in with Standard Oil heir Hugh Auchincloss.

She was 13 when this happened and is said to have found solace in its panoramic views over the Potomac river and seven acres of pretty grounds.

Jackie later went to Washington, DC to complete a degree in French literature before joining the Washing Times Herald as a reporter. It is through this job that she met the future 35th President of the United States, and then married him in 1953.

Merrywood, which since Jackie left has seen several famous visitors including Michael Jackson, is now being sold by AOL founder Steve Case. It's for sale at $49.5 million, which buys you a 23,000-square-foot, four-level, brick-and-limestone mansion with nine bedrooms and 13 bathrooms.

It also has elevators to all floors, a tennis court, two swimming pools and a gym. For more information visit TopTenRealEstateDeals.com

Author Roald Dahl is known for many things, including his books the BFG, Fantastic Mr Fox, James and the Giant Peach, Matilda and Charlie and the Chocolate Factory. His work continues to be popular nearly 30 years after his death.

More than 250 million copies of his titles have been sold so far and a musical version of Matilda is currently running in London's West End.

But what's less known is that this property in a leafy suburb of London was one of this favourite childhood retreats, perhaps even more so than the shed where he did most of his writing in later life.

The house, which was built in 1931 and is for sale at £825,000, is in Bexley where the Dahl family lived during WWII until they were bombed out of their home during an air-raid.

ROALD'S DAHL-ING COTTAGE UP FOR SALE

Dahl, pictured below, was then packed off to boarding school and the rest of the family decamped to rural Buckinghamshire. But the young Dahl repeatedly returned to this flint cottage to stay with friends; the address was said to be the nearest thing he had to a proper home in the chaotic war years. According to local historians, Dahl returned during his later life to see his old friend, and local archives reveal that he was often photographed in the area.

"Dahl was also known to make visits to nearby Bexley Library, where he would perform readings to local children," says Kevin Woode of agent Robinson Jackson.

For details call Kevin on 01322 559900.

WHY NOT CRASH AT A FRIEND'S PLACE?

MATTHEW Perry is famous for playing Chandler Bing from one of the most loved TV sitcoms ever Friends, which ran for 10 seasons in the US and beyond, including in the UK.

The actor, pictured, opened his self-penned play The End of Longing in London's West End in 2015.

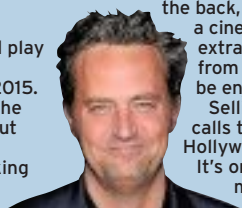

Matthew worked on the play in a London flat, but back home he had a luxurious villa overlooking the Los Angeles skyline. It's a 3,821 sq ft eye-popper with three bedrooms and four bathrooms on Sunset Strip with stunning views over the city.

It also has a courtyard garden at the back, an infinity swimming pool, a cinema room and an extraordinary glass master suite from where the city's skyline can be enjoyed.

Selling agent Partners Trust calls the property "a private Hollywood Hills oasis".

It's on the market for $13.5 million.

GET THE CATH KIDSTON LOOK

Anyone who's ever fancied giving their home the Cath Kidston look could have recently bought the ultimate solution; her home.

The fashion and homeware designer has just sold her house for £5.5 million and, as well as a glass-and-steel extension, the new owner will also get a taste of Kidston's design ethic, which is all over the property from the cool-white kitchen to the red and white lounge.

But the address comes with other connections. It was her husband Hugh Padgham – best known for producing Phil Collins and The Police – who bought the house in 2000 for £2.3m.

Kidston's home sold for £5.5m

Kidston is also related to former PM's wife Samantha Cameron and TV presenter Kirsty Allsopp, while her father was a racing driver and her uncle chairman of auction house Christie's.

Cath opened her first shop, which she has described as a "glorified junk shop" in 1993 after studying design with Nicky Haslam. Her £250m company now operates all over the world.

Her Grade-I listed property overlooking the Thames in West London is a beautiful 17th Century mansion built for an industrialist's daughter in 1720. Later it was used as offices for a nearby former brewery and then turned into flats, but has now been restored into a single dwelling.

Cath and Hugh added a contemporary extension by architects Wilkinson King, and the property now has three reception rooms, five bedrooms, two bathrooms as well as beautifully landscaped gardens.

YOUR GARDEN

With Diarmuid Gavin

Herbaceous borders are in peak condition this month with many displays of colourful collections looking wonderful in gardens throughout the country. For many gardeners these carefully planned displays are the climax of green-fingered achievement with carefully judged arrangements of height, flower power, scent and colour.

Bees, butterflies and moths are busy foraging for nectar among the blossoms.

It adds up to creating a beautiful sight – the epitome of British flower gardening – but one which requires constant help and intervention... even while the display is in mid-performance.

Happily, most of our midsummer tasks are enjoyable and allow us to appreciate our gardening achievements while tending to the borders' requirements, ensuring our efforts don't run out of steam before season's end.

It's good to remember that many herbaceous plants have a healthy appetite.

At the time of preparation of a border, you should add an under-soil seam of well-rotted manure to the space, deep enough so that it doesn't burn the roots of the newbies.

Then, each spring, a good feed with chicken manure or slow-release pellets will ensure they have supplementary feed for the summer display.

If they look a bit listless, give them a boost with a mid-performance liquid feed.

This could be a seaweed type or a high potash variety, such as tomato feed, to boost flowering.

Regular watering during dry weather is essential.

There are lots of plants vying for a drink and while they won't dry out as quickly as potted plants, they can still suffer, especially plants which are less mature.

A daily patrol to deadhead is enormously enjoyable and can reap huge rewards, and while you're at it, foxglove spikes and poppies can be cut down (unless you're saving them for seed).

Earlier flowering plants, such as lupins, can have stems removed after they've finished flowering.

Earn some nectar points

Your borders are full of colour but it takes effort to keep them shining

Busy bee: At work foraging for nectar

Eremurus adds excitement

If you've planted extremely densely, your border won't need much weeding. However, keep an eye on rogue plants – a weekly tugging out of unwanted weeds is part of the plan.

Some taller plants, such as thalictrum and dahlias, may need a bit of support.

Some people like to stake at the beginning of the season but I tend to adopt a wait-and-see approach.

If I can get them to stand tall without any support, all the better, but there are some, such as the valerian, which will now need something to lean on.

Observation is key – what's working, what's not? Some plants are natural invaders and will take over if allowed – lysimachia is one such offender.

Is she elbowing out her neighbours? It's a good time to tag plants that will need lifting and dividing in autumn or spring. You might want to do this to increase stock of a favourite plant or to rejuvenate an older one.

Very mature herbaceous plants tend to start to grow outwards in concentric circles like ripples in a pond, leaving a bare centre. So leave a marker in the ground beside these specimens so, come autumn, you'll remember which ones need doing.

I've been spending time gazing at my herbaceous borders and analysing what I'll change next year.

I have lots of purples and yellows which are working well but I think my red astilbe in the shady corner is jarring with the colour scheme.

I'll make a note of that and move it somewhere else in the autumn.

I can also see where it's going to be a bit dull later in the summer, so I might get some late-summer colour, such as asters, heleniums and rudbeckias, to keep the show going until early autumn.

Lysimachia is a natural invader

Scarlet lily beetle

Time to harvest and sow veg seeds

■ Watch out for scarlet lily beetle and remove where found.

■ In the veg garden, as well as harvesting you can be sowing seeds – lettuce, beetroot, Swiss chard, spring onions, swede and spring cabbage. Feed crops with liquid fertiliser.

■ Keep roses well watered in warm weather and regularly check pots for watering.

JOBS FOR THE WEEK

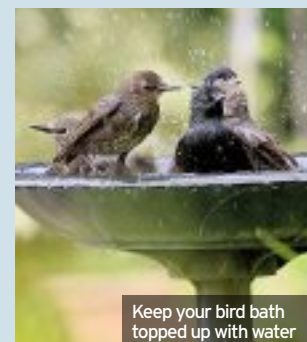

■ Peat-based composts can dry out, so plants may need complete dunking in a bucket of water until bubbles vanish.

■ Tomatoes need regular watering to prevent splitting.

■ Warm weather can lead to an increase in algae and duckweed in your pond, so fish it out with a small fishing net or twirl it around a cane. Barley straw in the pond can help keep the problem at bay, or if you can't get hold of this there are liquid products available that contain extract of barley straw which will do the same job.

■ Keep your bird bath topped up in order to help your thirsty feathered friends.

Keep your bird bath topped up with water

Get some late summer colour with rudbeckias

It's a time to imagine other possibilities.

Maybe you've had the same scheme for years and you're bored with your borders? Is it time to tear up your own rule book? Have you spotted something in other gardens you'd like?

Take photographs now – it's all too easy to forget once it dies down.

I think I'm missing some zingy colours, including orange – great for adding pep to a scheme.

Turk's Cap Lily

So next year, I'm thinking Geums, such as 'Totally Tangerine', which will go to work early in the season providing sprays of delightful apricot-orange blossoms. Tall Eremurus Pinocchio will add excitement.

I'm also going to include some orange Turk's cap lilies for midsummer madness and maybe finish off the season with some vivid Crocosmia Emily MacKenzie.

Never stop dreaming or planning!

ASK DIARMUID

Q Help! I have a blueberry bush and I've noticed the compost in the pot has become very fine.

It's alive with very small bronze ants. I'd like to know how to get rid of them and, also, will the berries be edible?

June Baker

A It sounds as if your compost has got a bit dried out as sometimes happens with peat-based acidic compost, and ants will thrive in this environment.

I'd give the pot a good soaking and try to mix in some compost or manure to help the soil structure.

Ants are often present when aphids are around, so you should inspect the blueberries for any infestation. I don't think the ants will harm your blueberries – generally, in the garden, they're regarded as a nuisance but not harmful and you're advised not to use insecticide around edible crops.

I have heard of a natural remedy – sprinkling cinnamon in the soil. You could end up with some interesting tasting blueberries!

Good luck.

PLANT OF THE WEEK

VERBASCUM 'GAINSBOROUGH'

This is a wonderful friendly summer plant – big architectural silvery leaves that are almost like wings and from them shoot a central spire which, in time, produces candyfloss yellow flowers.

It's not a plant that mixes easily but it will create a stand-out statement suited towards the front of a border.

The elegant pale lemon spires will flower for a long period and attract the bees and butterflies.

It's a plant that will do well in poor soil as long as it's light, well drained and in full sunshine.

This is a fairly short-lived perennial but easy enough to propagate from root cuttings.

By Lee Gibson

With the one-millionth Mazda MX-5 having rolled off the production line in April 2016, the world's best-selling two-seater sports car continues to thrill driving enthusiasts across the globe.

Mazda's iconic roadster has seen off notable rivals such as the Toyota MR2 and Honda S2000 in more than a quarter of a century on the road.

Combining affordability, exquisite driving dynamics and the allure of wind-in-the-hair freedom – for those that have any, that is – the MX-5 is now in its fourth generation and, quite frankly, shows no signs of relinquishing its crown any time soon.

With sleek, sharp lines, alloy wheels, narrow headlights, twin tailpipes and a muscular grille – it is a lightweight, low slung, road-hugging machine that will put a smile on the face of sports car purists even before they get in.

Climb behind the wheel, though, and the enjoyment really starts.

This is the lightest MX-5 since the first-generation and the chassis is stiffer and more driver-focused than ever.

The archetype rear-wheel drive, front engined set-up and low centre of gravity provide great balance and the fast and accurate steering and snappy six speed manual transmission make driving it a totally immersive experience.

It may not have the acceleration or straight-line speed of some hot hatches, especially with the smaller 1.5-litre engine under the bonnet that my car had, but it doesn't need it.

Although a 0-62mph sprint time of 8.3 seconds and top speed of 127mph are certainly not sluggish, the enjoyment here is derived from the incredible agility and responsiveness of the MX-5 rather than outright pace.

However, the free-revving power pack does offer plenty of mid-range punch, ensuring this little charmer really comes alive on winding country lanes or nipping in and out of town traffic.

The well-weighted steering offers great feedback while there's enough grip to inspire confidence but still get the adrenaline going when pushing on in fast bends.

The suspension, though, remains supple enough to make sure that all but the worst imperfections in the road surface are smoothed out and the ride is really quite smooth for such a low riding motor on narrow rubber.

The cabin retains the pared-back feel of a traditional sports car but squeezes in some modern creature comforts, especially in range-topping Sports Nav trim.

Equipment includes climate control, digital radio, Bluetooth, cruise control, heated leather seats plus sat nav and a premium Bose audio system accessed via a seven-inch touchscreen or rotary multimedia commander.

The only real issue is head room, which will be tight for anyone approaching six feet tall. I had the driver's seat all the way back, at it's lowest setting and the seat back reclined but, at 5ft 10ins, my head was still brushing the roof.

And what of that roof – the central ingredient of any convertible? Although not automatic the fabric hood can be easily dispatched and re-deployed single-handedly from the driver's seat, so no need to get out of the car, in less time than it takes powered equivalents to stow themselves away.

It also doesn't take up any boot space when folded down – meaning that you can just about squeeze a couple of weekend bags into the 130-litre boot.

Practicality is not a major selling point in the two-seater rag-top market, though, so the diminutive load space is unlikely to put off prospective buyers – and neither is the lack of a glove box.

There is a decent sized storage compartment between the seats, by way of compensation, and a couple of clip-on cup holders are actually more sturdy than they look.

Not that this is the sort of motor in which you'll be sipping your skinny latte anyway – you'll be way too wrapped up in just how much fun you're having.

Ladies take Konta's lead to lift Essex Junior Cup

100th 10k milestone for Kinney

NOT wishing to be outdone by Johanna Konta's wonderful Wimbledon run, Harlow Tennis Club's ladies first team won the Essex Ladies Junior Cup – 25 years after they last won the trophy.

Remarkably, three of their players have been born since then – Hollie Brown, 23, Amie Stingemore, 15, and Imogen Brooker, 12, while the fourth member of the team, Pat Kendall, played in the 1992 match.

On a hot, sunny afternoon at Billericay Lawn Tennis Club, Harlow faced a strong team from Lexden Hill.

In the first round of matches both sides were evenly matched, with Lexden Hill's Susan Bennett and Julie Sexton beating Kendall and Brown in a close fought match 6-2, 1-6, 1-0 (5).

Crucially, Harlow won one set which would ultimately tip the balance of the tie in their favour.

In the other match, Brooker and Stingemore, whose combined age was 27, showed maturity on court beyond those years.

They turned in a solid display against the second Lexden Hill pair of Jill Crown and Karen Capon, winning 6-2, 6-3.

In the reverse rubbers Kendall and Brown put in a strong performance but could not defeat Crown and Capon, eventually losing 6-7, 5-7.

Brooker and Stingemore carried on their strong performance winning again in straight sets – 7-5, 6-2 with smiles on faces and mutual respect between young and old.

The final score was two rubbers apiece, but the one set won by Kendall and Brown helped Harlow win on sets, 5-4, giving them the trophy.

Matt so proud to hear England call

Harlow cricketer selected for Learning Disability Tri-Series

HARLOW cricketer Matt Cowdery says he is proud to represent England in a tri-series against Australia and South Africa.

Bowler Cowdery, 26, is among the 15-man England squad for the INAS Learning Disability Tri-Series, supported by NatWest, which runs until July 21.

The tournament sees England taking on Australia and South Africa in the 40-over and T20 formats at club grounds across Cheshire.

The hosts started their campaign with a victory against South Africa at Chester Boughton Hall Cricket Club.

Seamer Alex Jervis took 5-46, while Dan Bowser made an unbeaten 84 to give England Learning Disability a comprehensive six-wicket win.

Cowdery finished with figures of 0-36 from his four overs.

The second match against Australia was lost to the weather at Grappenhall Cricket Club, with just 21 overs possible on a frustrating day.

England are back in action today (Thursday) when they take on South Africa at Bramhall CC.

Expectation levels were high going into the tournament with England having lifted the trophy on the two previous occasions it was held, in 2011 and 2015, and Cowdery is confident that the squad can go for the triple this time round.

"In Australia, we beat them 5-1, I'd like to say we can do that again but you never know what they're going to bring over," he said.

"England's aims for this tournament are to keep hold of the trophy and not lose a game, so a whitewash. I think that's possible because we've got the squad for it.

"There's a few Australia batters who are difficult to bowl against, but if you get the top order out quickly, they all just crumble, so I'll be aiming to get the first five out. It was brilliant when I found out I'd been selected for the Tri-Series, just like when I found out I'd been selected to travel to Australia a couple of years ago.

Crumble

"We haven't held a series in England for quite a long time, so everyone's looking forward to it.

"All my family's coming up to watch me, I play in front of them quite a bit so I'm used to it, but they're over the moon that I'm playing for England."

Cowdery, who has ADHD, has been a part of the England setup for around five years and describes playing for his nation as the high point in his career.

During the last series in Australia he took 7-19 to record his best figures, and he credits cricket with helping him develop as a person.

"I grew up with ADHD and it's never disappeared, I was about six years old when I found out about it," he added. "On the outfield with your mates and sometimes family, it clears your mind because it's set on the game of cricket."

"I would tell people with disabilities to play cricket and not give up, if it's something they want to do. For me, all the hard work has paid off."

Jack gives it six of the best to seal win

THE sun shone at Phoenix Park on Saturday as Harlow Town made hay against Ardleigh Green in Shepherd Neame Essex League Division Three.

After losing Dan Baldwin with only eight runs on the board, Ashley Alderson (66) and Joe Holland (69) took control, putting the visitors to the sword with a second wicket stand of 156.

Neil Gladwin joined Holland and the experienced pair took the score from 160 to 228.

A score of 300 plus looked on the cards, but with Holland's dismissal, Town lost their way as Gladwin saw wickets tumble around him.

He was eventually dismissed for 45, as Town used up their 50 overs with a below par score of 249-8.

A below par performance by Town's bowling attack saw the visitors steadily move towards their target.

But when Jack Elston was introduced to the attack by Scott Alderson, he did not let his captain down with a match winning performance of 6-40 in his allotted ten overs, taking Town to victory by 55 runs and keeping them in second place in the league.

Ronnie Yates grabbed two wickets with one apiece for Dan Farmer and Jay Pathak.
